Alana Belle is the Georgia Program Manager for Care in Action, a nonprofit dedicated to the dignity and fairness for Domestic Workers across the country. Currently based in Atlanta, she is an organizer from Cleveland, Ohio who has spent time working in multiple justice-centered focus areas; her experience doing environmental, economic, and racial justice work helped guide her to Reproductive Justice (RJ). The holistic approach to care that RJ fueled her dedication to advocating for those in need in all facets - socially, economically, politically, physically, etc.

Alana believes deeply that our road to freedom includes all tactics and that voting - especially in local/state elections - is critical to establishing a legislature that will shift resources to the most underserved members of our communities.
